FILER: SD-5 - Veteran trick riders early Thursday afternoon predicted more than 10,000 persons would be on hand at the Twin Falls county fair and rodeo before the end of the day. The morning crowd, which seemed to jam the fairgrounds, was slim compared to the steady stream of spectators that filed through the gates in the early hours of the afternoon. Activity Thursday morning was centered around the livestock arena where 4-H and 4-EF youth members

Teamster Chiefs Deny Union Is Dominated by Corruption

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (U.P.)—Teamster union leaders today denied charges that the union is dominated by corruption. They also said they plan to sue the federal government for association with racketeers. They did not invoke the fifth amendment when asked the social and political conditions but repeatedly pleaded that he could not answer the question.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (U.P.)—The six major labor unions today said they have agreed to distribute vaccine supplies to the states on a population basis.

That was the gist of the union's reply, given to the AFL-CIO ethical committee in a letter dated Jan. 10. The committee is a federation of 10 labor unions, including the

The Teamsters' delegation arrived nearly an hour late for a hearing by the committee.

It was led by the Union President James R. Hoffa, the Midwest Teamsters boss. Hoffa, then apparently to Beck as head of the 1.5 million member union.

Hoffa was accused of being influenced by corrupt elements based on disclosures against Beck. Hoffa and other Teamsters chiefs in the recent hearings before the Senate committee.

The statement which Beck, Hoffa and fellow-Teamsters leaders gave the AFL-CIO group this morning said of the charges:

"The Teamsters' response to summary charges against James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, is that the charges are 'a deliberate, gross misrepresentation of the facts and a proposal' by state health officials to have states and communities create advisory committees to draw up priority plans for inoculations."

Palmer said the "action" head of the health service, said the allocation system is "the most equitable way of distributing the Shipments will be made according to each state's percentage of the total population. Thus New York would get 95 per cent of the vaccine while Nevada would receive only 2 per cent for example.

T. F. Schools Report Hike For Students

(From Page One)
 Each Klamath Falls school has about 100 more students than the Washington school where the average room has only 20 students. Also, a few sixth graders attending Klamath school will be transferred to Washington school to cut the total of two sixth grade rooms. This school, where the sixth grades had 40 students each, a new sixth grade teacher was put in charge of the new room and a new fifth grade teacher was hired. At the high school, Klamath said speech and art classes were somewhat crowded, but several other classes had more students than normal. Washington is much better than four years ago when five new teachers had to be added after the opening of school.

Britain Hits Red Acts in Middle East

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A British charge formally today to Russia heavy arms shipments to Egypt, Syria and the Yemen "were calculated to postpone a settlement of the East-West conflict in the explosive Middle East."

In a scathing comment on the Soviet Union's series of notes on the Middle East to the Big Three powers this week, the foreign office said the "behavior of the Soviet government is itself in striking contrast to the proposals in the notes."

In the notes, whose text has not been disclosed, Britain and France have accused the Soviet Union of having aided the Syrian and Lebanese forces in the declaration denouncing the use of force in the Middle East.

The foreign office statement said the Soviet notes "are calculated to distract attention from the real issues in the Middle East."

The foreign office made it clear that Russia's offer of an armistice to the Middle East would remain unaccepted so long as Russia's satellites continue to supply weapons to the Middle East without any limitation.

Water Plans Revealed for Rest of Year

BOISE, Sept. 5 (AP)—Irrigation water for the remainder of the season in the Boise valley will come from Lucky Peak reservoir, with Boise river stream flow blocked at dams upstream.

Forest Sower, Boise project manager, said today no water will be sent to the natural flow of the river until the natural flow of the river will pass Arrowrock dam.

The water level of Lucky Peak reservoir will be lowered about 100 feet, Sower said, to permit flood season of a portion of state highway 21 along the lake shore.

Arrowrock reservoir, now almost empty, will be permitted to fill gradually from the natural flow of the river, Sower said.

"We are not wasting any water and we will have a goodly amount of storage should it be needed in case of a dry winter," Sower added.

Radios Speed up Bellhops Service

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 5 (AP)—The Marriott hotel has a new system of radio system to keep its bellhops on the hop.

"It should speed up our service several hundred per cent," Suddaby said.

No Change in Academy Chapel Plans Are Made by Air Force

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Despite bitter last-minute criticism, the air force plans to stand pat on the chapel design for a chapel at the academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Unless unforeseen circumstances arise, an official said today, there will be no change in the controversial chapel design, and the air force will clear funds for the construction.

The university's circumstances, he explained, might consist of further congressional action at the next session to bring the chapel as it is presently designed.

No date has been set for a start of construction. The academy is scheduled to open as its permanent site next fall.

The air force official said that plans for the chapel have not been changed by a bill introduced on the last day of the congressional session by Senator Stephens, D., Idaho, to eliminate funds for the structure by lowering the appropriation authorization for the air force academy by three million dollars. It was pointed out that neither the senate nor the house acted on this bill before they adjourned.

Conceivably, however, congress might take up the bill as soon as it is in the country, will be done here Sept. 14, the president, Mitchell Melich, announced yesterday.

Max Hertz of Elkhart, Mich., won last year. He smoked for 125 minutes, 7 seconds. The contest is conducted by the International Association of Pipe Smokers.

Mansfield, assistant senate Democratic leader, described the recent action taken by congress as "a very reasonable compromise."

Soviet Plane Makes Flight Across Ocean

Soviet plane, Capt. R. K. Ward, commander of the Soviet fleet, said he was the first to board the aircraft. That those aboard went to sea, he said, was a "great honor." Ward, a representative of the Soviet fleet, said the flight was 13 hours and 25 minutes. He said the plane averaged 800 miles an hour during the 5,300-mile flight.

Addressing the crowd, Ward said the flight was made by civilian airmen who "brought the friendly message of the Soviet Union to the American people." He said he hoped the flight would herald the start of regular air service between the United States and Russia.

A famed American aviator, said Ward, had been the first to fly across the Atlantic, and he was "very proud" to be the first to fly across the Pacific.

Three British airmen were aboard the plane, Ward said, and they were the first to fly across the Atlantic. Ward said the plane was made at London, Katlinsk, Iceland, and Gdynia, Poland.

By flying over the North Atlantic, Ward said, the plane was able to continue the flight or spend the night there, finally, however, the plane was forced to land in the British navy's base at the TU-104.

The tip-off was in the news!

If you didn't read it . . . read NOW what you can expect to pay for NATURAL GAS for residential heat!

Almost before the pipe lines are laid comes the news that the natural gas interests propose rate increases up to 20%. Read below some excerpts from stories printed in newspapers in the more populous areas covered by the natural gas lines. The proposed advance in prices will apparently apply everywhere in this region.

In BOISE

The pipeline petitioned the Federal Power Commission in Washington for a $5,500,000 a year rate increase, which amounts to a 17 per cent rise over present rates. The pipeline by subscriber distributors and large commercial users.

The pipeline serves Colorado, Idaho, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington with natural gas.

Gibson said that Intermountain has not received a copy of Pacific Northwest's filing, and could not say what the full effect of the request would be on company operation.

However, said Gibson, "PFC procedure requires hearings on all rate changes and Intermountain Gas company as an Idaho corporation will intervene vigorously with the PFC for Intermountain customers."

Gibson said that should new rates for the pipeline be approved, Intermountain would attempt to absorb the increase imposed on its firm's gas purchases for resale to residential and small commercial customers.

Intermountain Gas company said Wednesday that it does not anticipate a rate increase for the company's residential and small commercial customers as a result of a pipeline request for a price boost.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission today asked the federal power commission for permission to merge the Pacific Northwest Pipeline corporation into its system.

The merger would give El Paso an 8,900-mile natural gas pipeline stretching west from Texas to California and north to the Pacific Northwest and western Canada.

El Paso pointed out it already owns 99.9 per cent of Pacific's common stock.

In a separate application, Pacific asked for permission to hike its natural gas rates by 64 million dollars a year to reflect higher operating costs.

It also said it needed to tap the big "proved and potential gas reserves" of Pacific in western Canada and the Rockies to meet the "extensive demands" of California, for natural gas.

Spokane Natural Gas company today will ask for a 20 per cent rate increase effective September 20, Nathan H. Gellert, Jr., president, said yesterday.

About 54 per cent of the hike will be borne by residential consumers, he said. It will add about $30 a year to the typical household's bill, now about $140.

The hike would add about $20 to residential bills, but use gas only for cooking and water heating. Gellert said he would present the request to the state public service commission today to Oregon.

Lower Than Before '56
"The new rates are substantially below the rates charged by the company immediately prior to the introduction of natural gas in 1956," he said.

In a letter to be given to the commission Gellert said the new rates will compare favorably with other utility gas rates already in effect in the state for similar classes of service.

The company estimates the increase will add about $261,143 to its annual operating revenues.

"Pacific Northwest Pipeline Co. Wednesday asked the Federal Power Commission in Washington, D.C. for permission to hike natural gas rates 17 per cent in Utah, New Mexico, Wyoming, Idaho, Colorado, Oregon and Washington."

The commission immediately declared that the proposed increase would penalize Utah gas users, especially those in heavy industry.

"We plan to fight this rate increase strenuously," Hal S. Bennett, PFC chairman, declared after studying Pacific Northwest's three-month thick petition. "Utah does not want to be penalized."

"Much Higher Rates"
PSC Commissioner Donald Hacking said the rate increase was misleading and that Mountain Fuel Supply Co., which buys Pacific Northwest gas or contract, would pay much higher rates than users in other states.

Mr. Hacking said that the actual increase for Utah would be larger than the overall 17 per cent.

What about future gas price advances?

What may happen beyond the present proposed price advance is anybody's guess. But here is something to base it on: In Utah—a state served by natural gas for many years—the price advances in the period 1950-1956 have amounted to 24.7% for residential use and 34.6% for industrial use.

The bride wore a white gown with a long train and a full skirt, and the groom wore a dark suit. The ceremony was attended by a large number of family and friends. After the ceremony, the couple was taken to a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lee, where they were entertained by a large number of guests. The reception was held in a large hall, and the couple was the center of attention. The bride and groom were both smiling and happy, and the guests were all enjoying the evening. The reception was a great success, and the couple was very pleased with the results. The bride and groom were both very happy, and the guests were all enjoying the evening. Care of Your Children By ANGELO PATRI

"So you're back in town. Did you have a pleasant summer?" "The summer was all right but we had a miserable time with Jean. He was left back you know and he was left back for a minute. Poor kid. I'm going to see the teacher as soon as the school opens to see if I can get him ahead at least on time. He's terrible. All his friends going ahead. You know how children are. We surely do but when a teacher leaves a child back and he must repeat the grade there is a good reason and it is associated with the child's welfare. No teacher leaves a child back needlessly. There must be a good reason which has to be made clear to the head of the school as well as to the pupil's parents. The child's needs are being considered before all else. Of course, he feels bad about it. Instead of telling him how sad his condition it would be better to tell him that he needs to make sure of knowing his grade work. If he does not and goes into the next higher grade he will be in constant trouble and fail worse than ever. Tell him, too, that all children do not move at the same rate, do not learn at the same speed, each moves along at his own special rate and that the teacher must take into account the individual child. Next term will be easier. It is a mistake to insist that a child whose teacher says he needs to repeat a grade be promoted on the ground that he feels "terrible" and has a "complex." He will never get over it and should be given a try in the next grade to save his feelings. Nobody alive gets by without failure, a disappointment, even an injustice and everybody has to make the best of the situation and do as cheerfully as he can. Learn to be a good loser as well as a happy winner. Learn to accept defeat as gracefully and start over again with determination to make good to the next.

Olympic Committee To Study Ways of Trimming Games

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (AP)—President Avery Brundage of the International Olympic committee said Wednesday proposals to streamline the Olympic program will be studied at an IOC meeting in Sofia Sept. 20. However, Brundage denied a report in the French sports magazine "Sport et Vie" that he would ask the committee to eliminate basketball, cycling, water polo and soccer-football from the Olympic program.

4 Controlled Game Hunts

BOISE, Sept. 5 (AP)—Names of more than 1,000 sportsmen were drawn Wednesday in a huge drive to determine holders of permits in four controlled game hunts during the fall hunting season.

The drawing was conducted by the Idaho fish and game department, which said there were 2,000 applicants for the 1,000 permits. Winners will be notified by mail. The department said, as soon as lists can be compiled.

Drawn were the names of 900 sportsmen who will get permits to hunt elk in the Soldier Mountain game preserve from Oct. 1 to Nov. 15, 100 in another unit of the Soldier Mountain game preserve from Oct. 25 to Nov. 15, 250 in the Big Lost river area from Oct. 25 to Nov. 15 and 75 in the Owyhee country from Oct. 1 to Oct. 5.

The fish and game department announced it will use a new type of paper tag during the fall hunting season. Director Ross Leonard said the tag is attached to a card for use in reporting successful biological information in regard to the kill. The new tag has a snap lock for use in fastening around the slain deer's back ligament, bones of main beam of an antler.

Successful Hunter Displays Trophy

Dick Geer, Twin Falls, is shown with the Rocky Mountain billy goat he shot Sunday near the head of Mystery creek, north of Stanley. Horns on the goat measured 10 inches and weight was over 200 pounds. Usually snow white, the goat's hide was smeared during a tumbling fall of 800 feet. It was the first goat to be shot by Geer. T.F. Hunter Takes Trophy Goat in Week-End Hunt North of Hailey

Getting a trophy Rocky Mountain sheep with 10-inch horns proved little more than a week-end outing for Dick Geer and the only uncomfortable part of the trip was a 10-mile hike coupled with some steep climbing. But Dick, who was accompanied by his brother, Bob Geer, spent a few anxious minutes while watching his billy fall about 800 feet and fearing one of the horns would be snapped off. The brothers left Twin Falls about noon Saturday and spent the night in the Loon creek area, north of Stanley in the middle fork country. At daybreak, the hunters proceeded by foot up to the head of Mystery creek and then began a tedious climb to the top of the divide there.

Signs told them goats were in the area and the hunters had entered the top of the ridge only a few minutes before sighting the billy. Bob, who has killed a goat, sighted the quarry first, raising it from its bed a scant 30 yards away. Upon seeing the goat, Dick scrambled down the ridge to move up. Dick was out of sight and he had to call the sound of his voice startled the goat and began climbing along the ridge, but Geer says it was not "spooked" and just seemed to trot away from him. After the goat had traveled about 50 yards, Dick came into a position where he could see the billy and dropped it with one shot from his 300 Savage.

"Then the anxious moments began as the goat tumbled off the ridge and called toward a slide area about 600 feet below. After the first bounce, Bob, who was watching through his scope, thought he saw one of the horns break off and pinched through the air off to one side.

While he marked the spot from above, Dick scrambled down the ridge to check the animal. He also covered both horns with his left hand, attached to the billy's head and the hunt was over.

Geer says he was unable to estimate the weight of the animal, noting the two men could not lift it. Despite the fall, the hide and head were in near perfect condition. Dick plans to have a wall rug, with head attached, made of the white hide.

Present Plan for West Coast Move Won't Work, Says Giant Landlord

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP)—The landlord of the New York Giants said Wednesday he had been advised that the deal for the transfer of the club to San Francisco "can not come to fruition," as it is now set up. The landlord, Jay Coogan, who owns the Polo grounds where the Giants have been tenants for nearly 70 years, said he had been informed by the chairman of the board of a San Francisco bank that the deal "can not possibly eventuate."

Coogan said the deal would place too much of a financial burden on the taxpayers of the city. Coogan said the banker's identity was confidential.

However, in San Francisco, Mayor George Christopher said there is no question in his mind whether the city would be able to finance a stadium for the Giants.

"I invite anyone who has any doubts about it to come out openly and say so."

The Giants will be in San Francisco next year, said Edgar J. Foley, the Giants' attorney. Coogan declined to further identify his informant except to say that he was a "very influential man" in San Francisco.

"According to this banker," said Coogan, "the taxpayers cannot participate in such a tremendous undertaking which would cost them so much money. You simply cannot go out and tell the people to pay for it."

It is Coogan's belief that the Giants may still wind up in New York.

"From what I have gathered in conversation with the lawyer of the New York Giants (Foley)," he said, "the whole thing is far from settled. He told me that nothing is settled any more than there is."

Mysteries of Nature's Water Balance Being Explored by World Researchers

TORONTO, Sept. 8 (U.P.)—Our air holds only a 30-day supply of water to keep all humans, plants and animals living on earth. If the air suddenly dried out—as you might wish on a muggy, humid day—earthly life would soon thirst to death.

There's really little water in the total air surrounding the earth. Scientists estimate that water constitutes only 1-100,000th of one percent of the earth's atmosphere.

These are some of the findings so far from scientists seeking to solve puzzles of the earth's water balance. That means the exchange of water between the sea, air and clouds, the soil and all that happens in between.

An understanding of the exact mechanisms of water exchange and balance could give very practical results, Dr. H. Moebj, oceanographer of Bergen, Norway, today told the meeting here of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics. The knowledge could lead to better methods of forecasting or controlling weather. It could prevent some water-troubled areas from becoming deserts one day.

These are some of the reasons for intensified studies of the oceans and air, during the International Geophysical year. Scientists of 56 nations are making cooperative research to understand dozens of natural phenomena.

What has been learned about the water balance and future challenges were described by Dr. Moebj, by Dr. R. C. Rutcliffe, a British weather scientist, and others.

A strange carpet of turbulent air, only a third of an inch thick, lying over the oceans play a vital but still poorly understood role in the earth's water balance, Dr. Moebj said. This carpet, is full of holes, not uniform. To learn how it forms and exactly what it does are targets during the IGY.

Dr. Rutcliffe presented estimates of how much water there is in the air. Dr. Moebj said evaporation sucks thousands of cubic miles of water into the air from the oceans each year.

Beef Will Be Most Popular On Week-End

By The Associated Press

Various cuts of beef will be the most popular offerings at the nation's supermarkets and neighborhood grocery stores this week.

This welcome bit of news for beef lovers is not, however, due to any sudden reduction in beef prices. They're continuing at the recent high levels for the most part, and are expected to remain there for awhile. Presumably, supermarket chiefs decided they might as well offer a beef special, now instead of waiting for prices to come down.

The department of agriculture notes that while the supply of fat beef, which yields top grades, was somewhat greater this summer, the volume of grass-fed cattle (source of lean beef) coming to market in coming months will be well below last summer and fall. Last year's production was spurred by drought in key beef raising areas.

Many other meats will be featured at supermarket sales counters, of course. Frying chickens, with one exception, in many places, will be chain offering prices at 35 cents a pound, 10 cents below the market rate. Lamb, ham, turkey, pork ribs and shoulder, and veal also will be featured. Stores in areas where seafoods sell well will have flounder, halibut and halibut, snow crab, Alaska lobster and frozen had-dock.

Vegetables and fruit bins in most of the nation's stores still are chock full of fresh produce from nearby fields. In many places, the most popular vegetable buys include peppers, yellow sweet corn, eggplant, green and yellow squash, hunched beets, new green cabbage, tomatoes and potatoes.

California lettuce is reasonably priced in most places, along with pascal and golden heart celery, topped carrots, cauliflower, radishes and green onions. Broccoli is moderately priced. Yellow onions shipped from growing areas in California and California, also are moderate in cost.

The small fruits such as grapes, peaches, pears, figs and plums are coming in from California's fruit-growing areas in good supply, with prices ranging from good to excellent. Peaches, too, are plentiful although market men warn that some show a slight rust in quality and condition. The pear crop, incidentally, is expected to run about 4 percent ahead of last year's, and may reach a 10-year high. In addition, stocks of canned peaches July 1 were estimated to be 54 percent larger than a year ago.

The department of agriculture forecasts 115 million bushels of apples, up 18 percent from last year. Early varieties of the usual fall apples are coming into the market steadily. Apples, too, however, stocks of canned and frozen apples are abundant—up 60 percent from a year ago.

Monday's melons are reported slightly lower in price than last week, but still fairly expensive. Cantaloupes and watermelons are still on the bargain list in most places.

Meeting Planned

Whips Off Glasses

President Eisenhower whips off his reading glasses as he answers a question at his news conference Tuesday. The President used the glasses to look over a list he brought with him dealing with the record of Congress. Eisenhower said he is not much inclined to modify a previous statement that he is tremendously disappointed in Congress' performance. The President, in commenting on Russia's intercontinental missile claims, said more testing of such weapons is a long way from actual production. (AP wirephoto)

Cannon Shell Kills Men in Plane Mishap

EL CENTRO, Calif., Sept. 8 (U.P.)—A navy board of inquiry today blamed a "faulty firing mechanism" on a jet plane for sending a cannon shell ripping through a hangar at El Centro navy auxiliary air station, resulting in the death of two enlisted men.

The accident occurred yesterday as the P-3 Pursuit plane prepared to take off on a gunnery mission. The plane's 20-millimeter cannon without warning discharged the shell.

The shell hit one of the sailors 50 feet from the plane, ripped through the hangar wall and struck the second victim in the stomach. Pieces of the "non-explosive-type" shell also killed a third man.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin. The navy also withheld the name of the jet pilot.

Navy officials said the pilot had been cleared of any blame in the mishap.

Food for Thought

King-sized "hot dogs" give people something to think about in the U. S. Steel plant at McConaughy, Pa., where huge frankfurter-shaped cylinders were built. The cylinders are curved to match shapes of modern ship hulls in order to save space when used at sea. Containing high-pressure steam, the cylinders are of vital importance in the long undersea cruises of submarines. (AP wirephoto)

Delay in Natural Gas Service Seen

RENO, Nev., Sept. 8 (U.P.)—Despite the natural gas pipeline planned through eastern Nevada, the Sierra Pacific Power company says "no" to a five-year delay in service.

The El Paso Natural Gas company plans to run the pipe through Nevada to serve Wells, Elko, McGill and other communities in eastern Nevada. But the Reno utility manager, Frank Tracy, says the pipe would have to run about 100 miles further west to make a western Nevada extension economically feasible.

Tracy says his firm is working on color possibilities for bringing the gas west.

Lowering Set for Reservoir Levels

SEATTLE, Sept. 8 (U.P.)—Preparations to draw down Columbia river reservoirs below "rule curves" to meet the region's firm power demands were announced today by the Bonneville power administration.

Rule curves, plotted by engineers, represent reductions of reservoir levels normally planned during the September-April draw-down period. Bonneville said flow at Grand Coulee dropped to 70,000 cubic feet a second last week. This compares with a normal flow of 90,000 and a previous minimum flow of 85,000 second-foot at this period.
